Harriman And Hyde

President of Union Pacific De- nies Testimony of Former Equitable Official.

Ex Vice President Was Offered $7,000,000 For His Hold- ings In Company.

Was Anxious to Secure Ambass- adorship at the French Capital.

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—E. H. Harriman in his testimony before the legislative committee on insurance investigation today, Mr. Harriman was called after recess and his testimony was a series of denials of the charges made by Mr. Hyde. Contrary to Mr. Hyde's statement, Mr. Harriman said Mr. Hyde came to him about a year ago and asked him to use his influence to have him appointed ambassador to France. Mr. Harriman said he would speak to President Roosevelt when he saw him, but added that he did not recommend Mr. Hyde for the post. Upon Mr. Hyde's testimony relative to the settlement of ex-Governor Odell's suit against the Mercantile Trust Company being read to him, Mr. Harriman denied that he had suggested to Mr. Hyde any danger of a repeal of the charter of the trust company, directly or indirectly, and stated that Mr. Hyde came to him and asked him to use his influence with Mr. Odell in a settlement of the suit.

Denies Hyde's Statement

Mr. Harriman denied that he ever advised Mr. Hyde to sell his Equitable interests until after the report of the Erick committee, and said he offered to subscribe $500,000 to aid Mr. Hyde in retaining his stock. Mr. Harriman said the Erick report never mentioned the Union Pacific deal specially, but included it under the general statement that Mr. Hyde had committed the society in unwarrantable transactions without the knowledge of the committee. Mr. Harriman thought it perfectly proper for the Equitable to buy up under an agreement to hold it for five years. He did not know that it was in the deal, and always supposed it was that of the Erick interests, telling him that he would stand by him through thick and thin.

Mr. Hyde's Personal Money

After Mr. Harriman had testified, Mr. Hyde was called again and asked if he heard Harriman testify. He replied that he had. He reaffirmed his previous testimony and supplied data about several questions concerning which Harriman was uncertain.

Samuel Untermyer, counsel for Mr. Hyde, attempted to cross-examine Mr. Harriman, but the committee after consultation refused permission, whereupon Mr. Untermyer asserted the examination had been conducted in a disorderly manner.

With today's session the examination of both Mr. Hyde and Mr. Harriman was completed, and the next witness, who is awaited with much interest, is Mr. Odell, who has requested that he be examined.

Mr. Hyde's Evidence

James Hazen Hyde was the first witness today before the Armstrong commission, on insurance investigation. He asked to correct the testimony of yesterday, relative to offers for his stock. He said he did receive four offers besides that of Mr. Ryan. Two of these came from Mr. J. H. Young, for the stock. He was offered $5,000,000 for his entire holdings and $500,000 for half of them. George Gould also made such an offer, but these declined because witnesses did not think one man should control the society. Gage Tarbell made an offer and said he had a syndicate ready to buy the stock. George W. Young also offered to buy Mr. Hyde's stock. These were all verbal offers.

The largest price offered was $7,000,000 by George W. Young, former president of the United States Mortgage & Trust company. Mr. Gould's offer was made first.

"That was in the beginning of the row," said Hyde, "it must have been in the beginning of February. The second offer was made by Mr. Erick, a few months before the first board meeting in February of $5,000,000 for the stock. He held, or of $2,500,000 for one-half holdings, and I declined on behalf of the officers, as I did not think it was for the best interest of the society that I should then part with my stock or if I did part with it I did not think it for the best interest of society that one individual should control it. I had no idea of parting with my stock at that time. I offered to trustee it to the society for five years. That was at the beginning of this trouble.

THORPE & CO'S

A Five Year Trust.

"I offered to trustee it for five years and afterwards offered it to the society to buy it, and I then afterwards discovered the society did not have the right to buy it."

"What was the third offer?" "The third offer was an offer of $1,000,000 from Mr. Tarbell. He informed me that he had a syndicate of gentlemen ready to purchase it. This was some time in February."

"What was the next offer?" "Then I also received an offer from George W. Young of $7,000,000, I should say that was at the end of February, or the beginning of March, I am not sure of the exact date."

Mr. Hyde testified that the only offer for his stock made after the Erick report was Mr. Ryan's.

Reading from the acts of 1866, 1869 and 1870 incorporating the Fire Proof Warehouse Company and amending the act to change the name to the Mercantile Loan & Warehouse Company and subsequently in 1875 changing the name to the Mercantile Trust Company, Mr. Hyde brought out the story of the Mercantile Trust Company's charter. He then read a bill addressed by Senator Ambler in the senate in March, 1904, to repeal all those acts and amendments. The effect of this bill, if passed, would have been to leave the Mercantile Trust Company without charter.

Denies a Statement

Mr. Hyde here made a statement denying that he or the Equitable Life Assurance Society had anything to do with or any interest in the United States Ship Building Company, or its securities. On March 6, 1901, the Equitable Life Assurance Society bought 2,000 shares of the company. This insurance company at $174 per share and two days later sold 1,100 shares at the same price to George H. Squire.

Mr. Hyde said he did not know of the sale, though he was a member of the executive committee and did know that the stock was sold at a great deal more, short time before. Mr. Hyde said he sold to the society on October 13, 1904, 288 shares of this stock at 315 and that was the only transaction he had in the stock. The price was the market price at that time.

Stocks were bought on Mr. Hyde's account from William S. Squire, but Mr. Hyde denied that he had bought from them and said that no one had his power of attorney. He knew brokers were picking up this stock, but did not know it was being bought for any of his own company. Of the purchases he knew more, short time before. Mr. Hyde said he sold to the society on October 13, 1904, 288 shares of this stock at 315 and that was the only transaction he had in the stock. The price was the market price at that time.

St. Petersburg Industries Com- pletely Tied Up In Response to Agitators.

The Demonstration as Protest Against Execution of Mutineers.

German Troops Said to Be Mass- ing on Frontier and People In a Panic.

ST. PETERSBURG, Nov. 16.—(12:37 a. m.)—A fierce northeast blizzard and snow which blew down on St. Petersburg tonight prevented the Russian capital. The bitter cold night forcing the strikers to remain indoors did more to preserve order than all the Cossacks cavalry reserves are stationed in all industrial districts, but up to midnight there was no rioting. There were rumors of collisions in various parts of the city, but no investigation they turned out to be false.

The social democrats had an impressive response on the part of all organizations of workers to their summons for a general political strike to demonstrate their solidarity with the struggle of their Polish comrades for autonomy and to protest against the execution of mutinous sailors at Cronstadt. The men walked out of all the mills and factories, and the employees of the Baltic and Warsaw railroad, the printers and other classes in labor struck, but the shops in the centre of the city were not closed.

Troops took charge of the electric light stations, which were operated by sailors so that the city was not placed in darkness tonight. No despatches have arrived from the interior, however, to show that the workmen in other cities are respondent to the demand for co-operation, and discussion has broken out among the leaders of some who believe the strike to be hasty and ill-advised, and who say that if it does not succeed, the result will be a loss of prestige. At meetings tonight this faction urged the leaders to announce that the strike was only intended as a demonstration; but the radicals, whose aim is to keep up the revolutionary action at all hazards, refused to listen to such counsels. They insisted that it was vitally necessary for the success of their propaganda among the army and navy that they should get credit for saving the lives of the mutineers, and that if they could force the government to recede from its position regarding Poland, they would have it by the throat.

At strike headquarters tonight reports were being received, and the leaders refused to admit that the question of abandoning the strike had yet been raised.

The situation has caused a renewal of the panicky feeling among the inhabitants, whose nerves were already shattered by the events of the last fortnight, and hundreds of persons who had just returned are again leaving for Finland.

The foreign residents are becoming more and more alarmed, and many of them are hastily preparing to go abroad for the winter.

Strike Summons Issued

The proletariat of Russia has summoned another general political strike, beginning today at noon. This action was decided upon late last night by the workers' strike committee, which is now completely under the domination of the social revolutionists, whose leaders proclaim that their ultimate object is the complete overthrow of the monarchy and the establishment of a democratic republic. This is also the real aim of their brothers, the social democrats of Poland, but the proclamation issued keeps the basis in the background and apparently supports the popular sympathy for Polish autonomy and indignation on account of the application of the death sentence being imposed on the Cronstadt mutineers.

The proclamation says: "The imperial government continues to walk over corpses. It courtmartial the bold soldiers and sailors of Cronstadt who in defence of their rights and natural freedom. It encircles weak and oppressed Poland with the iron ring of martial law."

"The workmen's council calls on the revolutionary proletariat of St. Petersburg to renew the general political strike which has all demonstrated its dread power, in order to show brotherly solidarity with the revolutionary soldiers and sailors, as well as with the revolutionary proletariat of Poland. Let the workmen of St. Petersburg cease to work at noon November 15, with the cries of 'Down with the courtmartial!' 'Down with the death penalty!' 'Down with martial law in Poland and in all Russia!'"

To Gain Army's Sympathy

The committee has appealed to the strike committee throughout Russia to join the movement, and also appealed to the railroad men with the view to bringing about another general tie-up. One of the most potent arguments offered at the meeting of workmen's delegates last night was in this fight the workmen will have their efforts in behalf of the lives of the mutineers to increase the sympathy felt for the workmen's cause and help them to win over the army and navy to the cause of freedom.

Some of the delegates having the great question of economy uppermost in their minds, namely how to increase their incomes with diminished labor, protested that the political strike would interfere with the fight for an eight-hour day, but they were rudely waved aside by the majority, who claimed that there would be time enough to deal with economic ques-

Surveyor Harvey Back From Six Months' Trip Through North- ern Interior.

Immense Coal Measures Re- main Undeveloped—Fine Chance For Settlers.

ALMOST at the divide between the Skeena and Stikine rivers is an immense coal basin, one of the largest in the Province. Here is found both anthracite and bituminous coal, covering an area roughly estimated at from six to seven miles in width, heavily timbered and the coal measures are found exposed in innumerable places along the banks of the Skeena river and tributary creeks. These seams measure anywhere from one to six feet in width, and when uncovered may possibly be much wider of rock than the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway may take through the north, is sufficiently near for those with money to easily bring it under development by a branch line. But that question the future only will solve. Continuing Mr. Harvey said:

Settlers From Bulkley

"There are a large number of people going into the Bulkley valley taking up land and a movement of settlers is also on foot to the Kyspiox valley. Both these valleys are tributary to the Skeena and through them passes the Telegraph Trail. The Bulkley valley I should estimate is roughly 50 miles in length by from 12 to 15 miles in width. It is for the most part rolling land, suitable for agriculture and pasture, with here and there patches of poplar."

"The Kyspiox valley is not so long and is from four to five miles wide. It includes fine stretches of agricultural lands, natural hay meadows and wide open prairies. In both valleys the soil are adaptable for raising cereals and the root and vegetable growth is certainly phenomenal."

Speaking of the climatic conditions he stated that the summer and fall seasons were delightful and open, neither snow nor frost having come up to the time he left—the fifth instant. The winter season breaks up in April. In some re-

Pitiful Revelations Made in the Seattle Bogus Title Deeds Case.

Alaska Convention Assembles But Awaits Arrival of De- layed Delegates.

SEATTLE, Nov. 15.—Pitiful revelations in the land fraud cases occurred in Judge Griffin's court today, when the evidence of several women victims of Earl Connor, on trial for swindling, was introduced. They told of being robbed of property on bogus deeds. The victims were mostly poor widows with dependent children. Mrs. Nancy Clapp, Mrs. Johanna Johnson and Mrs. A. Schubert were the chief witnesses. In each case Connor or some real estate man gave bogus deeds for the money due him, and the women placed the papers in escrow and then sold the property for cash to innocent purchasers.

Alaska Convention

The Alaska convention was called to order at 10 o'clock this morning by J. T. Rausa of Council, the man who originated the idea of holding such a meeting. Roy Nye of Fairbanks and Sam Archer of Solomon were placed in nomination for the position of chairman, the latter winning out by a vote of 28 to 24. In view of the fact that many of the important delegates from the southeastern part of Alaska will not arrive until late today per steamer Dolphin, the convention adjourned pending the arrival of that boat.

Frank G. Higgins Dead

Portland, Nov. 15.—Frank G. Higgins, ex-leutenant-governor of Montana, died at St. Vincent Hospital in this city today, of a complication of diseases. None of Mr. Higgins' friends were with him when he passed away. The body will be held here until the arrival of friends from Missoula, where Mr. Higgins resided.

San Jose, Cal., Nov. 15.—Sir Arthur H. Vivian, formerly of the British navy, died here last night after a protracted illness.

Four Million Mortgage

Spokane, Nov. 15.—A $4,200,000 mortgage was filed in the auditor's office today, drawn in favor of the Knickerbocker Trust Company of New York and covering all the property of the Spokane & International Railway, which is to connect this city with the Canadian Pacific system. The bonds are 50 years and are issued at the rate of $30,000 per mile.

A Considerate Son

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 15.—Fritz Kaitz, 29 years of age, real estate dealer, last night shot his brother Dudley, 20 years of age, twice through the head and once through the heart, instantly killing him, and then fired a bullet through his own temple, dying on the spot. Fritz left a note addressed to his father saying that he had killed his brother and taken his own life because he believed the two were a burden to their father and were better off.

Vast Shoals of Herring Have at Last Appeared at Nanaimo.

Winnipeg House of Bishops Elect a Successor to Rev. Dr. Bompas.

Conservatives Now Have Two Seats in Alberta and May Have Three.

NANAIMO, Nov. 15.—The patience of local fishermen was amply rewarded tonight when the first shoal of herring came rushing into the harbor in a perfect tempest of fright, seeking shelter from the school of whales that were following them, spouting and blowing like porpoises. Immediately a large fleet of fishing boats put off and east the nets as the herring swept around Protection island as they had been on lookout night and day for past ten days for the first run. By eleven o'clock the first east had been hauled in and placed in casks totalling ten tons. The fishermen estimate that tonight's catch will reach twenty-five tons. Tonight's run is only a slight corner of the immense quantity of the curing establishments will reopen for the season's pack tomorrow. The fish caught tonight are pronounced of exceptional quality.

A Different Verdict

Halifax, Nov. 15.—The Halifax agent of the Hamburg-American Line has received the decision of the German admiralty court on the collision of that line's steamer Albano and the Allan liner Parisian, which occurred in Halifax harbor early last spring. It is directly opposite the finding of the Canadian admiralty court which heard the case in Halifax some two months ago and which found in favor of the Parisian, although the nautical advisor of the latter court dissented.

darkness tonight. The car drivers and cabmen have also been asked to join in the strike. The suddenness and magnitude of the move has terrified the inhabitants and has caught the government as usual unprepared.

The streets are already full of Cossacks, cavalry and infantry, but the authorities in the face of such gigantic revolutionary demonstration seem to be hesitating over what course to pursue. Thousands of troops have been brought and distributed during the last few days under cover of providing for defence against the "Black Hundred," the danger of bloodshed on a large scale should the troops fire is greatly increased. The revolutionaries have boldly boasted that the people are now better prepared and better armed for a conflict. Moreover they assert confidently that they know positively that the soldiers of certain guards regiments will refuse to fire upon the people.

English Millowners Meet

The English millowners at meeting this afternoon decided to shut down indefinitely, as it is impossible to attempt to continue work while the present revolutionary spirit prevails. At the embassies the situation was regarded as much more serious than ever before. Genuine alarm is manifested as to whether the government will be able to meet the impending crisis. Measures are being taken, but their nature is not disclosed.

The report that Germany is massing troops on the Polish frontier, is said to be confirmed from high sources and it is understood that British and German warships are being made ready to sail to the Neva if necessary and according to the current report, land troops to protect the lives of foreigners, should the mob get the upper hand.

A large meeting of workmen is being held at which the most incendiary speeches are being made and resolutions adopted.

"We appeal to our brothers, the peasants, to aid in the struggle. Bread to the workmen, land to the peasants, liberty to the people, down with absolutism!" "We express sympathy with our comrades at Cronstadt. If the government dares to execute them the proletariat will rise and the blood of sailor heroes

Joseph Martin On Aylesworth

Well Known Politician Scores
New Minister on His Utterances.

Tendency of Liberal Leader Is to Destroy Party's Vital Principles.

The following from the pen of Mr. Joseph Martin, K. C., appears in the Toronto World of November 15:
Editor World—According to despatches appearing in the Coast newspapers, Hon. A. B. Aylesworth in his canvass of North York has declared that he is opposed to the pension bill of last session and proposes to have it so modified as to amount to a practical repeal.

Mr. Aylesworth has made a great reputation for himself as a lawyer, and I have no doubt he is a gentleman well calculated to become responsible for everything the government may do while he is a member, but also adopts the policy of the government which he enters with regard to past matters, and stands in exactly the same position with regard to matters already determined upon as the old members of the government. It is also quite clear that no minister in a government well calculated to promulgate any individual opinions of his own with regard to any question of policy on the part of the government of which he is a member.

When questions come up they are carefully considered in council and once a stand is taken and announced it becomes the duty of each member of the government to espouse and defend the announced policy no matter how much he may have opposed the same in discussion in council.

When a person becomes a member of a ministry when there is any matter upon which the government have taken a stand the same situation confronts the new member. If he is a member of the government to the position taken by the government, but he must not say so, in fact, it is his bounden duty to be prepared to defend the government's policy with regard to all matters of the government of which he becomes a member.

No government could, of course, be carried on unless the individual members were prepared to give voice to the policy and if at any time a policy is adopted by a government with which any member thereof finds it impossible to agree, then there is only one course for that member to take, and that is to resign his position.

So also when a person is requested by the prime minister to become one of his colleagues, if there is any public question upon which the government has taken a stand and is pursuing a defined policy with which such a person is not in accord, it is his duty to refuse the position unless the government agree to modify its stand in accordance with his views.

On constitutional grounds and in accordance with well defined practice in the British constitution, it is the duty of a clearly Mr. Aylesworth's duty to inform Sir Wilfrid Laurier that he could not become a member of his ministry unless the government would agree to modify the obnoxious pension system in accordance with his ideas.

If Mr. Aylesworth had taken this course, there should have been a public announcement in view of the pending by-elections, of what had been done, and that the government intended at the coming session to amend the legislation accordingly.

As this has not been done, we must assume that Mr. Aylesworth failed to take that stand.
To my mind Sir Wilfrid Laurier and his distinguished colleagues, who have at present the Liberal party in their hands, have repudiated and attempted to destroy all the vital principles of the Liberal party of which true Liberals have always been so proud. Apparently the new member intends to take a further step and repudiate and destroy the well known principles upon which the Liberal government rests in Canada, being founded upon British precedents.

All the more reason that there should be a new party founded upon principle. Let me ask, a hearing of the matter, what Mr. Tarte was turned out of the government for?

The weather has been mild and it is planned to keep the line open to December 1, breaking all records.

LAND FOR PEASANTS.

Reported That Russian Imperial Domain Will Be Sold to Serfs.

St. Petersburg, Nov. 15.—The Associated Press is informed from a high source that a ukase will be issued positively tonight whereby a large portion of the Imperial domain, which covers almost a third of European Russia, and which is owned by the Emperor and the Grand Dukes, will be given to the peasants.

According to this information, land will be supplied to the landless peasants in fifteen acre allotments not as a free gift, but on easy terms. The payments to be made through the peasants' bank and to cover a period of 35 years.

There is also under consideration a plan for the abolition of the special economic classification of the holding of peasants by the peasantry and the placing of land as freehold, on the same footing as other subjects of the Emperor.

FAIRBANKS TO Y. M. C. A.

Vice President Says Golden Rule the Best Code to Live by.

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 15.—At a meeting held at the English opera house this afternoon under the auspices of the Young Men's Christian association, Vice President Fairbanks delivered an address before 2,000 people. The vice president was welcomed by hearty applause. He said, in part:
"Our country lies in an educated citizenship. The best interest of the country is to be conserved through the instrumentality of the schoolhouse. There is no better code by which to live than the golden rule. It has been the guide to millions in ages past and it will continue to guide the conduct of millions yet to be."

"If you can not do a kindly act to your brother, act not at all. I am a firm believer that as a people we are growing in greatness and expanding in all the ways that make for better men and better women, for better homes, for a better city, a better state and a better country."

LABOR AND CONSUMPTION.

Delegate Tells A. F. of L. Convention of Tuberculosis in New York.

Pittsburg, Nov. 15.—The afternoon session of the American Federation of Labor opened with an address by Paul Kennedy, secretary of the committee on prevention of tuberculosis, on the charity organizations of New York. Mr. Kennedy requested the Federation to do something to prevent the further spread and if possible to eradicate the disease. He asked that the factory laws be enforced and told of the good work done by his committee in the past year and showed that the death rate in New York alone had fallen off 40 per cent. in the past year, meaning a saving of 5,000 lives.

The convention appointed a committee to attend a meeting in New York on November 29.
A number of resolutions were placed and adopted, one favoring a savings bank system in connection with the post office department of the United States.

G. E. Brookshaw, a delegate, presented a resolution asking the federation to use its best efforts to defeat the Townsend-Pisch railroad rate bill now pending before congress. None of the delegates seemed ready to discuss the matter and the resolution was laid on the table.

and Crew of Atlantic Schooner.

Newport, R. I., Nov. 15.—The Fall River schooner James Parker, with her ensign flying union down, with Mrs. William A. Davis, the captain's wife, and two others of the benighted crew, were in the midst of a desperate battle with the gale, with Capt. Davis tied to the wheel in water that continually broke over him, trying to keep the craft's head on to the seas, was picked up in a leaking condition off Brenton's reef today by the tug Solicitor and the United States torpedo boat Dahlgren. Mrs. Davis with the two members of the crew were taken from their precarious condition by a launch which accompanied the Dahlgren. They were in a pitiful condition from exposure to the wintry seas and gale, and required medical assistance. Capt. Davis stood heroically at his post and declined to leave his vessel until he beached her on the flats, barely in time to save her from sinking in deep water. When his lashings were cut away Capt. Davis collapsed and was brought to shore in an almost helpless condition.

CARL V. OF NORWAY.

Prince Charles of Denmark Telegraphs Acceptance of Throne.

Christiania, Nov. 15.—The government will present the result of the plebiscite to the storting tomorrow. The official figures show that 257,710 votes were cast in favor of Prince Charles of Denmark as King of Norway and 68,552 against him.

A telegram was received today from Prince Charles accepting the offer of the throne. According to the Aften Posten the Prince will take the title of Carl V. The royal flag will be a golden eagle on a purple field. The municipality tonight constituted itself into a committee to prepare for the reception of Prince Charles.

speets the summer climate is very similar to that in the northwestern territories.

The Mineral Outlook
Discussing the mineral outlook in that section, he said that many rich discoveries of copper ores had been made, principally at the head of the Telkwa and Copper rivers.

He also stated that the prospectors were elated over the outlook for a big camp coming into existence. The ores are chiefly grey copper, copper glance and borate. "From a prospector's standpoint the headwaters of both these streams are fairly easy of access. The mountains, though rugged, and heavily covered in timber are by no means as precipitous as those in the Cloacan district."

"IT'S ONLY A COLD, A TRIFLING COUGH"

Thousands have said this when they caught cold. Thousands have neglected to cure the cold. Thousands have filled a Consumptive's grave through neglect. Never neglect a cough or cold. It can have but one result. It leaves the throat or lungs, or both, affected.

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup

's the medicine you need. It strikes at the very foundation of all throat or lung complaints, relieving or curing Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Asthma, Croup, Sore Throat, and preventing Pneumonia and Consumption.

It has stood the test for many years, and is more generally used than ever. It contains all the lung healing virtues of the pine tree combined with Wild Cherry Bark and other potent remedies. It stimulates the weakened bronchial organs, allays irritation and subdues inflammation, soothes the phlegm and mucous, and aids nature to easily dislodge the morbid accumulations. Don't be lugged into accepting an imitation of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. It is put up in a yellow wrapper, three pine trees the trade mark, and price 25 cts.

Mr. Julian J. LeBlanc, Belle Cote, N.S., writes: "I was troubled with a bad cold and severe cough, which assumed such an attitude as to keep me confined to my bed. I tried several remedies advertised but they were of no avail. As a last resort I tried Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup and one bottle cured me completely."

trict. The country reminds one more of the boundary where the hills are also pretty heavily timbered."

In Mr. Harvey's opinion, the Skeena river country holds out great opportunities to persons used to the privations of living on the outskirts of civilization and to the settler willing to stay by the country until more adequate means of transportation is afforded, but to those unduly by training, temperament or lacking physical endurance to withstand the hardships to be encountered in a new country it is no place. Mr. Harvey and his party returned to the city from Hazelton via the Skeena river.

to the Equitable Trust Company, officers of the Equitable Life Assurance Society were buying the stock of the Lawyers Titles Insurance Company in the name of the American Deposit & Loan Company and taking the profits on the stock. This was the first Mr. Hyde had heard of this transaction.

Witness Could Not Remember
Mr. Hyde said he could not remember that he had ever received any money or division of profits from George H. Squire, and it would be difficult to refresh his memory, because his books have been in a most confused state since he left the Equitable Life. He did not know that it was possible for Squire to sell stock to the society without the knowledge of the executive committee but thought it could be done by an arrangement with the president.

Mr. Hyde said he was unable to ascertain who and his power of attorney, while he was abroad, because when he returned the paper was always destroyed. Senator Armstrong asked the witness if any obligation purporting to have been made at a time when Mr. Hyde was abroad should turn up now, how he could determine if it was a legitimate transaction. Mr. Hyde replied "I don't know, it would be very embarrassing."

The amount of expenses incurred by Mr. Hyde on behalf of the society was not gone into Mr. Hughes announced that when he was covered in the report of Superintendent Hendricks, and it was not his purpose to go into matters so covered, because of the imitations of the commissions time.

Mr. Hyde added to this statement in that respect an explanation of his care used in making up the report of these expenses. He said that he would have been glad at any time to have gone over these expenses with any of the members of the executive committee but he was never asked a question about the matter, nor was he ever asked for an item.

Former Governor B. B. Odell, Jr. today requested Chairman Armstrong of the insurance investigation committee to call him before the committee and give him an opportunity to testify under oath in reply to the testimony of Mr. Hyde, given before the committee.

COMMERCIAL TRAVELERS' TAX.

An Ottawa despatch dated November 10th states that the measures passed by the Quebec and British Columbia legislatures, imposing a tax on commercial travelers, were considered that day by the Dominion cabinet. The opinion of the Minister of Justice is that the legislation is constitutional. It is stated, however, that in the case of Quebec the Minister considered the legislation dangerously near the line which calls for disallowance. This, we may assume, arises from the fact that the tax is so high as to be almost prohibitory, when it would fall within the category of legislation creating an interference with trade and commerce, over which the Dominion has supreme jurisdiction. The only grounds upon which the Acts could be disallowed are those of the public good, and the Minister evidently did not think the circumstances justified such interference. We are informed that the government does not look with favorably eye upon this class of legislation, and that the hope was expressed that the provincial legislatures in each case would repeal the law.

Theoretically, at all events, the law is objectionable, and it would be more satisfactory if the conditions did not exist which rendered it justifiable in our case. It has been responsible for a great deal of ill feeling in the East in commercial circles towards British Columbia, by those, we may say, who have not stopped to consider the reasons which dictated its passage. The commercial traveler has been used to go from one end of the Dominion to the other, and sell his goods without let or hindrance. He has had the open sesame and has been welcomed wherever he went. The sudden check imposed by a licence fee produces a feeling similar to that engendered by many years' rights over a common or a roadway which have been withdrawn. To the commercial man it appears to be a violation of the principle of free intercourse between provinces, the keeping of bad faith with the rest of the Dominion.

In the case of British Columbia there are mitigating circumstances which are not sufficiently taken into consideration. A tax upon commercial travelers may be a bad thing, but there are worse things from which British Columbia has had to suffer, which are in the interests of the Eastern wholesale merchant and manufacturer. The eastern man has the advantage of rates in markets outside of the province, which ought to be common to both. He has the advantage of rates to points in the interior over the wholesale merchants of this coast. He has the advantage of position, which the Crow's Nest branch of the C. P. R. gives him in relation to direct connection with the trade of the Kootenay country. That railway, we all know, was built, not primarily in the interests of the people of British Columbia, so much as the result of an agitation on the part of Eastern wholesale merchants and manufacturers, aided and abetted by the influence of the gentlemen who wished to get control of and operate the coal in the Crow's Nest Pass. British Columbia might have cried until doomsday for such a railway had it not been for the eastern interests that demanded it. Commercially we all know that it gave the eastern wholesale trade largely the control of the eastern market.

In addition to all that, however, the eastern man who had not a dollar invested in British Columbia, who did not contribute a cent to the running expenses of the country, could come to the province, as he did, and capture the trade in competition with local men, whose capital was all invested in the province, and who paid heavily in personal property taxation to the provincial government. The question was discussed at the meetings of the commission instituted to make enquiry into inequalities of taxation under the Assessment Act of 1903, and it was decided by the commissioners, as the result of hearing the evidence of wholesale merchants in British Columbia, that the eastern merchant should bear some share of the expense of administering the country in which he did a large and profitable business. He could not be taxed on the goods he sold to the customer, because they were outside of the province, and a licence to do business was the only form which such a tax could take.

It is quite true that the commercial travelers' tax is not in accord with the principle of the encouragement of interprovincial relations; but the eastern man has not yet realized that it is a principle which in the past has worked almost wholly in one direction. British Columbia has received little or no benefit of a commercial nature from its relations with the other provinces, except latterly in the direction of Manitoba and the Northwest provinces. We have bought heavily from and sold little to the East. We have paid three times our share per capita towards the administration of the affairs of the Dominion. In banking, in our insurance, in our trade and in our taxation there has been a constant and a heavy drain upon the province. We have been regarded as a peculiar and a profitable preserve for the eastern manufacturer and merchant. The average eastern politician, who we may assume represents the average easterner, is the man who kicks most vehemently against any enterprise in the West. He wants not only our trade, but all the money for public expenditure spent, if possible, in the East, where the votes are.

We do not say this in the spirit of sectionalism, but as a fact, as a statement of conditions which have grown up, for which no person in particular is responsible, but which exist beyond any possibility of denial. We do not say that the commercial houses which are being taxed are to blame especially for this condition of affairs. It is one, however, which the eastern man has failed to appreciate, a fact shown by the tremendous uproar that has been created when the tables have been turned. We do not believe in the principle of taxing any person to do business in this country; nor do we believe in the one-sided system of benefits which has been in vogue for many years. Let the eastern man recognize that the West has claims for consideration, along with the East; let him consider some of the difficulties we have had in developing this country as a market for him, the obstacles that have to be overcome in opening it up, its distance from the centres of supply, our measure of political handicap by isolation, and the enormous expense of local administration by reason of peculiar physical conditions.

When the eastern man is prepared to recognize the situation of affairs as has been represented to the central government on behalf of this province, and is prepared to acquiesce in the rendering of justice, he will then be entitled to the fullest measure of freedom to do business in British Columbia.

Montreal Gazette: Mr. Fielding is said to resent Mr. Aylesworth's declarations against the ministerial pension system. It can be imagined, too, that the report is well founded. The incident of a newly appointed minister condemning a policy for which his colleagues are individually and unitedly responsible is calculated to make the interested parties feel annoyed, at least.

Canada was not altogether overlooked in the distribution of the King's birthday honors. Two prominent Canadians were knighted, and three received C. M. G.'s. Hon. J. B. Gowan, L.L.D., K.C., of the Senate, and Major Pellatt, Toronto, are the knights. Major-General Lake, Prof. Saunders, Director of the Dominion Experimental Farms, and Dr. George Arthur Doughty, Canadian archivist, are the C. M. G.'s.

This is from the Winnipeg Commercial, and not from the Victoria Colonist: "There is frequently a very pessimistic feeling towards Western Canada expressed by some men in the east, who have never visited here, and know practically little or nothing about conditions in this part of the Dominion. . . . When we think of the millions of dollars to be spent, estimated at over $260,000,000, in the next few years by the railways in opening up millions of arable acres, and of the scores of branches being built to many fertile points by the Canadian Pacific and Canadian Northern railways, we must come to the conclusion that there are minds that see more in the West than those who decry the possibilities of these parts, and who never, perhaps, see beyond the narrow sphere in which they live.

Our Canadian banking system has become the subject of much encomium in the United States. "The ease and safety with which the chartered banks of Canada finance the crop movement of the Dominion ought to be a lesson to the United States, for it is an annual demonstration of the Canadian banking system, so far as its relation to the currency is concerned." This is what the New York Journal of Commerce has to say on the subject. It is well known that in the United States a very large sum of money is withdrawn from regular channels each fall and sent west for the purpose of handling the crops. This sometimes seriously hampers commercial and industrial enterprises depending on ready money. Nothing of that kind happens in Canada. The currency of the country is constantly and automatically adjusted to the demands of business. In order to fully explain clearly and fully the subject, which is not generally well understood, The Colonist is publishing this week an article from the Journal of the Bankers' Association of Canada.

It is little wonder that the West has refused to defeat Liberal governments appointed thereto by Sir Wilfrid Laurier. It is alleged by the Winnipeg Free Press that the C. P. R. has conspired with the Conservatives at Ottawa to actually kill the Prime Minister in order that it might carry out its evil designs. The plot failed because Sir Wilfrid refused to die, and an esteemed contemporary suggests that Mr. Borden has moved to Ottawa in order that he may have more time and a better opportunity to carry out this criminal design. However, according to the Free Press, kind heaven imparted sufficient strength to the premier "to save his country and bless the West." Least it may be charged that we are bearing false witness against a neighbor, the Free Press states that in 1903 in pursuance to instructions from the C. P. R.: "The Conservative politicians were prepared to pursue obstruction to the point of literally killing Sir Wilfrid Laurier, who was in weak health just before the session began. The reasoning was that if he could be killed or driven into retirement by wrecked health, a Conservative administration would succeed, and the Grand Trunk project would collapse."

Having had occasion to discuss the campaign carried on by Mr. Whitney in Massachusetts for election to the Lieutenant-governorship, it was remarked that if he were successful the result would materially assist the feeling in the United States towards reciprocity with Canada. Whitney did not succeed, but he came so very nearly defeating his Republican opponent that the result may be regarded, in this instance, as a virtual victory for his policy. He was only behind Draper, the successful candidate, by 2,000 votes, the majority being the smallest ever secured by the Republicans. Twenty thousand Republicans are said to have gone over to Whitney. The contest was virtually a duel between him and Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, the political boss of Massachusetts, in which the latter employed every means in his power to defeat the Democratic nominee and advocate of reciprocity. The result, therefore, though not decisive, is sufficiently significant to show a strong leaning in the direction in which Whitney desired the United States congress to go. In fact, Senator Lodge must accept the verdict as a signal of warning that public opinion in Massachusetts, at all events, is turning against him. It is the voice of a great manufacturing state. Naturally the result of the state election there carried on on the lines in question had great interests for the Maritime Provinces, the people of which are pleased thereat. In Nova Scotia there is also the personal interest in Mr. Whitney, who has, or had, such a large interest in the coal mining of that province.

SUCCESS IN ADVERTISING

Making Publicity Interesting to the Reader
It is a study that is very important. Merchants are concentrating much attention upon it.
(Written for The Colonist by Allen West.)

Chapter 4.
Manley M. Gillam, creator of the Wanamaker style of advertising and advertising counsel to the New York Herald, considered the greatest advertising man in the world told me that to make advertising interesting was the first essential to advertising success.

"It must be interesting in order to induce people to read it," he said.
"If they do not read it, it cannot be the means of inducing them to buy the goods it advertises, or rather, fails to advertise. It is not advertising unless it is read, and it will not be read unless it is interesting."

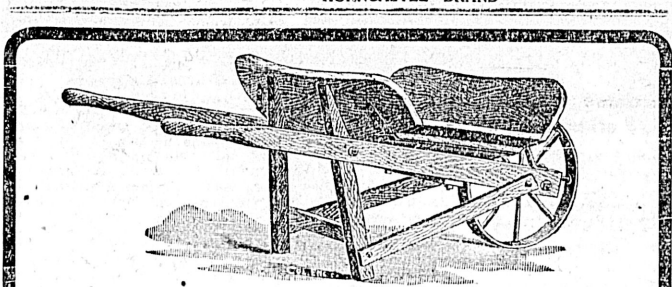

How to Make Advertising of Interest to the Reader
How to make advertising interesting—that is the question.
It is not half so hard a task as most people imagine.
Certain fundamental principles are involved.
Let us analyze.
First—Why do you read anything?
Answer—Either because of what is said, or the way it is said, or both.
Which is the more important, what is said, or the way it is said?
Both Are Equally of Importance
It is hard to say.
Argument will establish either.
For instance: Many of the most important things in the world, such as the laws of health, physical culture, the laws of mind, mental culture, the spiritual laws, are never read at all by tens of thousands of people.
The laws of the land in which we live are not read by more than a small percentage of the people.
The laws governing property and business are not read. That is why so many people get into foolish difficulties, lose money or land or property that they never lose if they read up on fundamental things.
But they do not, which proves that the importance of any subject is not the first reason why people read it.

But People Do Read Important Things?
But people do read important things? Very true—when those things are presented as part of the news of the day. The eternal human craving is for news. We want to know what happened yesterday, but not the day before, unless what happened the day before is really news to us.
We do not want to read what has happened so long ago that it is stale.
Our First Love Is For News
We love news even in fiction. A new book, involving a new idea, a new method of treatment, a new style in literature, is as popular as a new style in clothing or wearing the hair because it is new. Frank A. Munsey told me that he asked him how he made a success of Munsey's Magazine.
"By publishing stories that are new in style or method, and deal with new ideas and situations and plots, and then by having action in all my stories," Wanamaker's advertising manager told me the same thing when I asked him how he made his advertising so interesting—

"By having it so full of news that people can't help reading it."

"A store is the greatest news centre in the world."

Each Department Head is a City Editor

"Each department head is the city editor of his department."

"He gathers the news of the goods he sells."

"News is prices, new prices that must move the goods; and news is new goods received, and it is styles that we show."

"Store news is anything that is new to the public that the public really wants to know. It is just as interesting to them as any news a newspaper prints, and more so than most news, because it is the news that affects every reader's pocket book, his personal appearance, her comfort, and the whole list of things that go to make up the sum total of affairs affected by the daily buying."

The Advertising Manager Is the Managing Editor

And he went on to say that the advertising manager was the managing editor of the store.

Gillam was managing editor of a great newspaper before he was managing editor of the Wanamaker store.

And as managing editor of the store the advertising manager shifts out the most valuable and important and interesting news of each department and gives it the proper space in the newspapers and the proper set-up, and adds to the announcement embellishments of headings and editorial comments and illustrations, all in the effort to make the ad as interesting as possible, so that it will be read in competition with the advertising of other houses and in competition with the rest of the contents of the newspaper.

And right here is an important thing which lots of advertising people overlook—the competition an advertisement has.

Competition an Advertisement Must Meet

The first competition it meets is the force which impels people to read something—for instance:

A thrilling novel,
A story of murder or disaster or political upheaval.

An illustrated article on fashions in the readers favorite newspaper or magazine.

The magazines themselves, which are coming more and more into vogue, seductively into this and every other community, and which employ the best writers in the world to present stories and articles of interest universally, and whose advertising columns teem with advertisements written by the best advertisers in the world.

Things Which Distract the Reader's Attention

Then there are the multitude of things in your personal life to distract your attention:

A note to meet,
A social engagement,
Going to the theatre,
Sewing to do,
A friend who calls,
Golf, driving, cycling,
A sick friend to see,
Housework to do,

And much as you wish to read an advertisement, you must overcome these distractions before you will read it.

But the Reading Habit Is Very Strong

On the other side there is much to be said of the reading habit and its strength. It is the habit we have of looking over the local newspaper carefully every day that gives the wise advertiser his chance.

For there are few of us who do not read the paper every day no matter what is happening to distract our attention.

And that habit increases constantly.

More people read newspapers and people read newspapers more carefully.

Because the habit breeds the habit.

Because the newspapers are very much more readable—installing added news facilities and printing plates, adding fascinating to their miscellany through widened opportunities to compete with the best magazines offered by the syndicates, and by the newspaper combinations, which are the progressive papers advantages which no magazine can overcome.

And also because the newspaper in any city is the only means we have of keeping up with the news of the day.

Nevertheless, Advertisers Must Make Their Ads Interesting

But this disposition to read a newspaper must not be exaggerated into the whole thing in advertising.

The people may read a newspaper, but not a given advertisement in it.

Because the advertisement may fail to be interesting.

It is human habit to skip what does not interest us.

On the other hand we seek what's worth reading, and every advertiser who presents an ad that is worth reading may rest assured it will be read, if it is in a newspaper like The Colonist, where the public read all its contents, not skipping things unless they look uninteresting.

It is the respectable, reliable, home newspaper that is read all the way through.

Local News

Hospital Board.—A meeting of the board of directors of the Provincial Royal Jubilee Hospital will be held at the board of trade rooms this evening at 8 o'clock for the transaction of general business.

K. of P. Meetings.—The amplified meeting of the Royal Engineers will confer that rank on several candidates at their meeting, Friday next.
Nomination for officers will also take place.

Annual Dinner.—Arrangements have been made for the annual dinner of the St. Andrew's Society at the Victoria Hotel on November 30. Prior to assembling at the dinner the installation of officers will take place at the hall,
Broad street.

Fortnightly Dance.—The usual for-tightly dance of the Royal Engineers
Quadrille Club, will place this evening.
A large number of initiations have been issued, and it is expected there will be the usual good attendance.

Temperance Lectures.—The meetings
at the old Temperance Hall, Pandora St., are being largely attended. The dresses by Miss Rae of Winnipeg, and McFadyen, of Vancouver. Meetings will be held every night this week, at 8 o'clock, except Saturday.

Salvation Army.—A social will be held in the Salvation Army barracks on Broad street tonight. The program will render several selections during the evening. There will also be duet and solo singing and a splendid time is anticipated.

Cinderella Dance.—The annual Cinderella dance for the benefit of the Provincial Royal Jubilee Hospital will be held on Friday, December 1st at the Assembly Hall. This was decided at a meeting which was held very recently.
It was also decided to follow the precedent of last year in regard to dress, which was that of the Cinderella. Optional. The committees to carry out the arrangements have also been appointed.

St. Andrew's Society.—At the annual meeting of St. Andrew's Society, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Hon. president, Mr. Justice Irvine; president, Mr. E. J. Milne;
first vice-president, J. R. Mackie; second vice-president, P. J. Riddell; secretary, E. C. Smith; treasurer, Walter Walker; chaplain, Rev. E. A. Ewing; marshal, J. Taylor; warden, R. Wilson; instituting officer, E. B. Paul, M. A.

Victoria College Lecture.—Tomorrow
evening Dr. T. P. Hall, of Vancouver, will deliver the third lecture in the Victoria College lecture course, upon the subject: "Primitive Life and Social Development." The lecture will be illustrated by lantern views, showing living forms highly magnified upon the screen.
From a study of the development of the lower types of life the lecturer will pass to a discussion of the development of social institutions. A very interesting lecture may be expected as Dr. Hall is a man of ripe scholarship and one who has made an extended study of science and sociology.

Civil Service Examinations.—The four candidates writing on the Civil Service qualifying examinations will conclude their labors today. Yesterday the following papers were written on: penmanship, composition, arithmetic and geography. Today the subjects will be history, grammar, orthography and transcription. Rev. Dr. J. Campbell in charge of the examinations stated to the Colonist that the papers set were by no means of an easy nature, in fact, just so stiff that they precluded the possibility of any but the brightest candidates passing. Those writing are all Victorians viz., Edgar L. Fawcett, John A. Grant, Wilmot B. Wellwood, and Miss Wilhemina Baxter.

The New Library.—Although all the books for the new library have now arrived, no date has yet been set for the official opening of the new edifice. Dr.
Hands and his assistant are at present very busy getting the new books arranged on the shelves. The books are very nicely bound and it is very likely that the library will not be ready for the public before another month has passed. Dr. Hands desires that everything should be in position before the new building is thrown open to the public. The books which were sent East to be rebound have not yet been returned,
but are expected to arrive at any time.
These books will also have to be gone over and made ready for the shelves.

The Will Case.—The following from the San Francisco Examiner of recent date refers to a well known Victoria lawyer: "D. M. Rogers, K. C., a London lawyer as distinguished as Sir Charles Tupper, is now associated with the latter in looking after the interests of Mrs. Joan Olive Douglas. He arrived from England yesterday and is in the St. Francis. He will work in association with Campbell, Metson & Campbell, attorneys for Edna Wallace Hopper, and with T. E. K. Cormac and John M. Burnett, who also are on the legal staff of the plaintiffs. Mr. Rogers last night declined to talk about the case. Attorney Charles S. Wheeler has been attorney for James Dunsmuir, and it is supposed that he will have charge of the defence in this case."

City Council.—An adjourned meeting of the city council will be held this evening when a number of minor matters will be dealt with.

Refuge Home.—At the meeting of the Refuge Home Committee the following were cordially thanked for donations:
Mrs. Wm. Grant, Mrs. Spencer, "a friend," Mrs. Bickford, Nanaimo Union, Mrs. McKensie, New Westminster,
cash; King's Daughters', cash; Mrs. F.
a. Grant, cash; and Ladies of the Metropolitan Church.

Two Weddings.—Two weddings occurred yesterday evening at the residence of Mr. R. Loughney, St. Francis avenue, Lynn Valley. The bride and groom were united in marriage by the Rev. Dr.
Campbell. The bride was Miss R.
Loughney, and the bridegroom was Mr.
A. Brewster. A large number of friends were present, and the number of gifts showed the popularity of the bride and bridegroom. At First Presbyterian church manse, Rev. Dr. Campbell also celebrated the marriage of James Henderson and Alice Elizabeth Downie, both of Seattle.

The Abduction Case.—No further trace of the missing children of Mr. F. J.
L. Tyler, who were abducted from their residence last Friday, has yet been discovered. It is understood that the telegram which Mr. Tyler received from his wife was sent from Toronto, which is about 80 miles from Portland on the Northern Pacific Railroad. It is thought that they are making their way to Wyoming where the wife's relatives reside and own a tract of land. The provincial police are also interested in the case but are at present unable to throw any light on the whereabouts of the missing children. Mr. Tyler is endeavoring to interest the Provincial authorities in the matter and called at the Attorney General's department yesterday morning but what success he met with it was impossible to learn. The Colonist was yesterday evening requested to say that Mr. Boyer, whose name is mentioned in connection with the affair, is very well known here as a man of honor, who has for a couple of years assisted in the support of his sister, Mrs. Tyler, whose side of the case has not yet been presented.

Locates Here.—A. C. Galt, a prominent barrister of Rossland, who has made an enviable reputation in the Kootenay mining town, has decided to take up practice in this city. He will have rooms at the board of trade building. Mr. Galt, who now becomes a resident of Victoria, has been identified with the Provincial Mining Association from the inception of that organization, and took a very active part in the conventions held here.

SUNDAY SCHOOL ASSOCIATION.

Victoria Branch Is Preparing for a House-to-House Visitation.

The Victoria branch of the International Sunday School association has nearly completed its organization for house-to-house visitation. This organization is not only international, but also interdenominational. It knows no nation, no denomination, no church, no sect or creed in its practical work, but aims at getting through the instrumen-tality of the Sunday school, the rising generation into the fold of other of the great flock of which Christ is "the good shepherd." The object of the contemplated visitation is to secure the attendance at some Sunday school or other,
all the boys and girls of school age in the city. The association has divided the city into districts, each of which is under supervision of a committee. These committees have appointed visitors, who on the 25th inst, will go out like the disciples of old, two and two, and call at every home in Victoria, irrespective of church connection or ecclesiastical tendency, and secure the name and address of the family, its church or Sunday school preference; the number in the home under 18 years of age, not attending Sunday school, and other items of information, essential for the association to have in order to accomplish its laudable undertaking. A similar canvas of the city was made a few years ago with excellent results. The visitors were then well received at the homes, and the desired information cheerfully given. No doubt parents and others will see to it that on the 25th inst, the Sunday school visitors who undertake this laborious canvas, as labor of love, in the interest of the boys and girls of our fair city, will be kindly received and the necessary information given them with as little delay as possible, for the work is extensive, and must be accomplished in one afternoon. "The King's business requires haste."

Sometimes Help the Hair to Go.

In any changeable climate the hair is apt to become brittle and to break off easily here and there. This makes a hair dressing almost a necessity, especially to ladies. In using a hair dressing why not get the best, one that combines with it the efficiency in killing the germ that causes what is called falling hair, and in time, baldness. Newbro's "Herpicid" is that kind of a hair dressing. You have no idea how delightful your scalp will feel, and how stylish your hair will appear, after an application or two of Herpicid. It is certainly a wonderful invention, as a scalp antiseptic and hair dressing. Sold by leading druggists. Send

ATTRACT CAPITALISTS
TO B. C. MINES

Government Sending to London
a Big Shipment of Special Literature.

There is now a big demand for literature and information regarding the mineral resources of the province. The Provincial Department of Mines, through the agent general's office in London, is arranging for a big distribution of government mining reports and bulletin No.
19, dealing with the industry, together with maps showing the different mineral areas of the province. Yesterday a shipment of a ton and a half of books and pamphlets was sent to Mr. Turner's office, and the mining department will,
it is said, institute a campaign of publicity to create a more healthy sentiment here of British capital in mining enterprises.

A prominent mining man in speaking of the possibility of securing capital for investment in this Province said: "Only by everlasting hammering away at capitalists and those representing funds for investment in mining shall we succeed in securing the attention that our resources really justify. There are many channels in the old country through which the investor might be reached.
Lists could be secured of the names of shareholders in some of the South African companies for instance and one of the annual reports or a bulletin mailed.
In this way the recipient would come in direct touch with our mines and obtain a knowledge of their possibilities from an investor's standpoint. The mining industry, in my opinion, needs as much publicity work to attract capital as any other of our industries and there is certainly immense sums of money ready for new activity—that is, what better than in British Columbia?" he concluded.

OBITUARY.

The Chatham Planet contains the news of the death of James (Mrs. Jones) formerly of Chatham, Ont., in Ann Arbor, Michigan. Jones was a gunsmith, who was also a man of very considerable attainments and intellectual abilities. His two daughters were graduates of the Michigan University, one of whom is now practising medicine, probably the only colored woman in the profession in the United States. Jones had two brothers in British Columbia, one on Salt Spring Island, where it is understood he still has relatives. Both of his brothers were for a time in Cariboo.

On Tuesday afternoon the remains of Mrs. G. B. Harrison were laid at rest Rev. G. K. B. Adams conducting the services. The funeral was largely attended and there were many beautiful floral tributes. Those acting as pallbearers were: A. Grier, J. Hillson, F.
Blake and E. Branson.

I can not speak too highly of this valuable medicine." For sale by all druggists.

Are You Tired and Nervous?

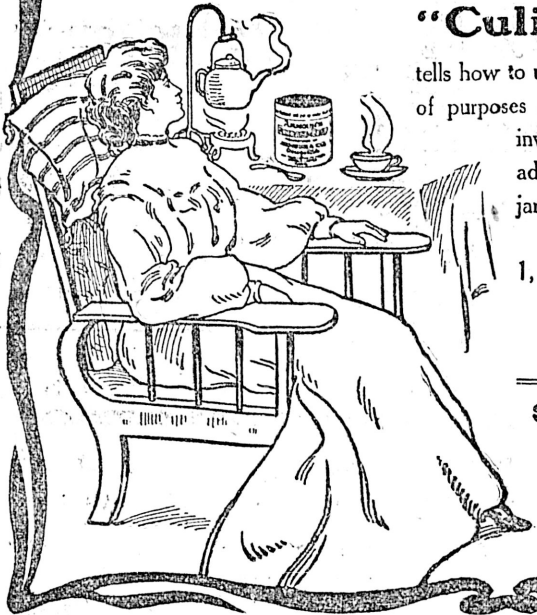

A cup of steaming broth made with Armour's Extract of Beef will tone, soothe and sustain.

Here is what a school teacher says:

"I know of nothing that braces me up more and makes me feel as if something were still worth while, than to brew one of those magic cups of Armour's hot beef tea and slowly sip it while very hot, and fatigue and nerves disappear. Better than all bromides and other sedatives is Armour's Extract of Beef, and many a convalescent have I urged to speedy recovery by gift of a neat white jar bearing the well-known ARMOUR label."

Armour's Extract of Beef

is pure concentrated essence of prime beef, the kind of roast beef you like to have on your table.

"Culinary Wrinkles"

tells how to use Armour's Extract of Beef for all sorts of purposes and gives a number of suggestions for invalid cookery, etc. Sent postpaid to any address on receipt of a metal cap from a jar of Extract or a 2c. stamp.

OPENING COAST PULP INDUSTRY

First Work Being Done by Oriental Power Co.—Plans For Buildings.

Arrangements are being made for the commencement by a local company of the development of its pulp leases up the coast, says the Vancouver Province. Mr. J. M. Mackinnon gave an outline of the plans in a brief discussion this morning.

The local company is known as the Oriental Power & Pulp Company, Ltd., and the financial sponsors are the Canadian Finance Syndicate Company of London, England. The company is the successor in this province at Graham Ranch and Gardiner's Channel of the enormous acreage of 84,180 acres. Principally on the Mainland; five hundred and six acres for a mill and townsite with a waterfront, the dock being already built, and has recorded water from Yale Lake, which will furnish all the power up to fifteen thousand or sixteen thousand horse-power, sufficient for manufacturing and for any other purpose possible to arise there.

The plan of buildings exhibited by Mr. Mackinnon shows a collection of structures for various purposes as large as a small town. Of these the storehouse, mess and bunk houses, to accommodate thirty men, are already up, and preparations for other buildings in a very forward state.

What Woods Are Used

The timber owned by the concern consists of spruce, hemlock and balsam, in which there is very little pitch; what there is is completely removed in manufacture, which is known as sulphite pulp, known as sulphite fibre, which differs in substance and quality from the ordinary woodpulp, being an entirely superior product and bringing a much higher price.

The process used is the Mitscherlich, a German-Swedish method, of making the article, these nationalities having made a study of pulp-making commencing long ago and being at the top in its scientific production. This process is designated in the United States as the "slow cook" method. This is the system to be used, and Mr. Mackinnon is confident that in the coming year he will possess the capacity to turn out thirty-five to forty tons of pulp a day.

The timber to be used is the virgin forest, the facility of manufacturing being greatly aided by being able to disregard areas which have been logged over as the source of supply is elsewhere. It is estimated that this company owns four million feet board measure, which would make about five million cords of woodpulp, a cord making about seventeen hundred and fifty feet of pulp.

Methods of Manufacture

SHIPMASTERS PETITION.

Navigators Say Masters' Papers Are Procured Too Easily.

The Vancouver Shipmasters' Association has forwarded a petition to Ottawa asking for a change in the law regarding the granting of licences to navigators as masters of tugboats. The shipmasters claim that the law as at present in force, is too loose. As the law now stands, the association says, masters' papers are too easily procured. Practically all that the applicant has to do, according to the petition, is to go before the examiner, pay his fee, file a statement to the effect that he has been three years in the service of some coasting steamer, and produce a recommendation (which is almost invariably a letter from a mill or logging company or some other large employing concern) to the effect that the bearer is, in the opinion of the writer, competent to handle a coastwise freighter or tug of less than 100 tons burden. These formalities being complied with and the Inspector satisfying himself that the applicant can tell red from green lights, the papers usually follow as a matter of course.

What the shipmasters want is an adoption of the conditions prevailing on the Great Lakes, where a man must be able to prove his ability to navigate and handle the largest—not the smallest—ship coming under the class for which he is applying for papers. They also want a board of examiners appointed on which the association shall be represented.

THE STAGE.

Watson Theatre

Last night the Watson Stock Company gave its last performance of "The Danites." Tonight the company will appear in a double bill—the old-time English farce in one act, "My Turn Next," a little comedy written for laughing purposes only, which has had many a long run to its credit in London and all the large English cities, to be followed by a performance of the celebrated English comedy, "David Garrick," written around the life of the great English actor of that name. Manager Watson has an up-to-date version of this fine old play. These two plays will run out the balance of the week, with the usual Saturday matinee. Next week two exceptionally strong plays will be presented—"New England Folks" and a special production of "Under Two Flags." Ouida's novel, "Under Two Flags," has been read by thousands, and the dramatic version which the Watson company will present brings out all the thrilling and sensational scenes and introduces all the well-known characters.

What the shipmasters want is an adoption of the conditions prevailing on the Great Lakes, where a man must be able to prove his ability to navigate and handle the largest—not the smallest—ship coming under the class for which he is applying for papers. They also want a board of examiners appointed on which the association shall be represented.

TRADES AND LABOR.

Meeting Last Night Discusses Recent Dismissal at South Park.

Council held last evening, a resolution was passed expressing regret that the board of school trustees had seen fit to dismiss Miss A. D. Cameron and requesting that she be reinstated in her position. This resolution was only passed after a great deal of discussion in which a number of the speakers handled the trustees in a very straight manner. A communication was received from the Trades and Labor Council at Vancouver, stating that all the unions of that city intended to affiliate with the Dominion Trades Congress, and requested that every union of the city should do so, in order that they might all be represented at the meeting of the Dominion congress which will be held in this city next year. A communication was received from P. M. Draper, secretary of the Dominion Trades Congress, requesting a list of the International Unions in this city and Vancouver. The organizer for the Laundry Workers union is expected to visit the city in January and he requested the local council to do all in their power to put the union on a working basis, till he arrives, when he will be the question. The local council will meet the master plumbers on Monday evening next, to arrange the difficulty which at present exists in the local shops.

Meeting Postponed.—The meeting of the Fernwood Municipal Association called for yesterday evening has been postponed until Wednesday, the 22nd instant.

In the majority contest L. Goodacre is leading with 70; C. Hayward, 42; C. E. Redfern, 17; Mr. J. Hanna, 14. The contest will be continued throughout the week, and more candidates are expected to be put forward.

Mock Parliament.—The Y. M. C. A. mock parliament held its second session last evening, with Mr. Luginh as speaker. The principal business was the discussion of the speech from the throne. This brought out some very good debates on both sides; for the government, Messrs. McCandless, Nelson, White, Blyth and Ferguson, and for the opposition Messrs. Clement, Mowat, Gleason and Dunn made vigorous criticisms of the policy and severely scored the government for lack of business capacity. Mr. Luginh complimented the members on the ability displayed and suggested that they follow on parliamentary lines and become accustomed to their use.

Seattle Wants a Game

The Victoria United footballers, in addition to their fixtures with the Garrison, have received a communication from Seattle asking for a game. Captain Goward has not yet made arrangements for the game, but the Seattle team suggested that they would prefer to meet the local boys either Christmas or New Year's Day. It is altogether likely that the team from the American side will be given the opportunity to try conclusions with the Victorians on either one of the days mentioned.

No effort is being spared by the locals to win the city championship. A practice was held on Tuesday evening, and another will be held this evening. With the locals leading the league by two points, and one game to play, the chances of their crowning the league are very bright. With the two clubs in this position it means that the Garrison must win the next game to tie the locals. Out of the three games which have been played the locals have won one and drawn two. Both of the drawn games were played at Work Point barracks. The next game will be played at Oak Bay, which is the locals' home ground, and in the last game that was played there they were victorious. By playing on their home ground the team claim an advantage. This will only be maintained by constant practice, which the locals endeavor to continue till the date of the game. They have made a good beginning for the season, and with a continuation of the work they will give their opponents a hard run for the victory.

Arrange Schedule

A meeting of the Victoria District Football League was held at the Y. M. C. A. last evening. The entry of the Central intermediates was received and accepted, and a new schedule was drawn up, which was as follows:

November 25—Centrals vs. North Ward.
December 9—Centrals vs. Centrals.
December 23—Centrals vs. North Ward.
January 6—North Ward vs. Centrals.
January 20—Centrals vs. Centrals.
The game which was played on Saturday between the Centrals and North Ward was allowed to stand. It was arranged that the junior match between the North Ward and Centrals should be played at Beacon Hill on Saturday at 2 o'clock, on account of the Oak Bay grounds being occupied by the Rugby players. The game will be refereed by H. Harper.

GOLF.

The following is the result of the drawing for the Calcutta cup. The matches are being played on the 16th and 17th and must be played off before November 20 and the second round before December 4.

C. M. Roberts vs. Ward.
Judge Lammiman vs. the winner of R. A. Beddome and D. R. Irvine.
H. Combe vs. B. H. T. Drake.
J. A. Rihet vs. C. H. Cookson.
F. H. Sterling vs. A. P. Lutton.
C. J. Babcock vs. C. W. Rhodes.
Col. A. W. Jones vs. A. S. Gore.
H. D. Twigg vs. L. O. Garnett.
R. H. Swinerton vs. A. D. Crease.
S. Holt vs. C. C. Birch.
W. F. Burton vs. B. G. Goward.

HOCKEY.

Match Game Tomorrow

A well attended practice of the ladies' hockey team was held yesterday afternoon at Oak Bay. A practice game has been arranged between the High school and the ladies' club to be played tomorrow afternoon. The Victoria ladies club are making active preparations for their match at Nanaimo on the 25th instant, and will endeavor to get as much practice before that date as possible. The ladies of the High school are also considering an expedition to play Nanaimo, and with this intention that they will meet the ladies' club tomorrow afternoon. The game will be started about 4 o'clock, and a good game is looked for.

BILLIARDS.

Royal Artillery Defeat Locals

In the billiard tournament which was played at the sergeants' mess, Work Point barracks, last evening, between a team from the Royal Artillery and a team from the Drilard hotel, the former proved the winners, winning three, losing one and drawing one. As the contest was a proposition to play Nanaimo, and with this intention that they will meet the ladies' club tomorrow afternoon. The game will be started about 4 o'clock, and a good game is looked for.

INSURABLE WOMAN.

The following taken from a recent issue of Collier's Weekly has been sent to The Colonist with the request that it should be published:

An editorial on happiness is logically followed by one on woman, and logic is our specialty. According to the Hindu legend, the Creator of human life, after completing man, found his materials exhausted, and no solid elements left. After profound meditation he took the fecundity of the moon, and the curves of the creepers, and the clinging of tendrils, and the trembling of grass, and the slenderness of the reed, and the bloom of flowers, and the lightness of leaves, and the glances of deer, and the eagerness of sunbeams, and the weeping of clouds, and the fickleness of the winds, and the fluidity of the hare, and the vanity of the peacock, and the softness of the parrot's breast, and the hardness of adamant, and the sweetness of honey, and the erocity of the tiger, and the warm glow of fire, and the coldness of snow, and the chattering of the jays, and the cooing of the cuckoo, and the hypocrisy of the crane, and the fidelity of the drake; and compounding all these together, he made woman, and gave her to man. But after one week man came to him and said: "Lord, this creature that you have given me makes my life miserable. She chatters incessantly, and teases me beyond endurance, never leaving me alone, and she requires incessant attention, and takes all my time, and cries about nothing, and so I have come to give her back, as I can not live with her." So the Creator took her back. And after a week man came back and said: "Lord, I find that my life is very lonely since I gave you back that creature. She used to play with me and cling to me, her laughter was music, and she was beautiful to look upon, and soft to touch." So the Creator gave her back, but in only three days after man returned, saying that after all she was more of a trouble than a pleasure; but this time the Creator refused, and the man said, "What am I to do now, for I can not live either with her or without her." And the translator notes that the Roman Martial had said likewise, and we all know that many of us, and our friends and acquaintances, have said likewise. It would, women say, if they wrote philosophic legends, and gave in words their view of man?

A bunch of good money may be saved by purchasing now many of the little requisites appropriate for holiday presents, from some of the large stocks carried over from last year and which are now being put on the market at prices much below original cost in order to make room for consignments of new goods coming forward. The B. C. Drug Store, 27 Johnson street, among others, are offering a splendid assortment of handsome and high-grade toilet and other goods at less than cost to make room for new, and thus the world goes on—one goes and another comes.

A RIGHT WAY and A WRONG WAY

Many people have many ways to bring about the same result. Most of them are mistaken ways, but this is not known until the test of time points plainly to the error. Practically there are but two ways to accomplish anything; a right way and a wrong way. Take, for instance, a man with a bad back, there are lots of them, and of various kinds, some with stitches and twinges, others with cricks and twinges; then there's the dull, heavy continuous kind that lasts all day and doesn't sleep at night. They're all bad enough, they're all hard enough to get rid of. Some people rub the back with liniment, others cover it with plasters, either or both means often bring relief, but the pain comes back—it's the wrong way to cure the trouble.

DOAN'S KIDNEY PILLS

have a way to cure backache, a way that's all their own—the right way. They're made for the kidneys only. When the kidneys fail in their work of filtering the blood the back aches because they are situated in the small of the back; backache is the kidney's warning of trouble, and every day you let the warning go it brings you nearer to urinary disorders, Diabetes, Bright's Disease, etc.

Doan's Kidney Pills cure every form of kidney ill and that's why they bring such quick relief from backache. Mr. Fred Gray, Good Corner, N.B., writes: "I was greatly troubled with pain across my back. I procured a box of Doan's Kidney Pills, and received so much benefit from them that I consider them the best remedy for kidney trouble there is. I would not be without them in my house."

Price 50 cents per box or three boxes for $1.25, all dealers or The Doan Kidney Pill Co., Toronto, Ont.

In Plant Life
Luther Burbank's Wonderful
Achievements in Plant Breeding.
Book on the Man and His Work
Which Has Just Been Issued.

The breeding of plants is nothing new, but he who enlarges the scope of an operation is entitled to as much credit as the inventor of an entirely new process. Plant-breeders worked in gardens or conservatories with a few varieties, until Luther Burbank showed them that the labor of many lifetimes could be accomplished in a few years by scientific methods and experiments at once instead of two or three. Some of the wonders that he has brought into being have already been described in these columns. Now we have a book on Burbank and his work, bearing the title that stands at the head of these columns. Mr. W. S. Harwood, tells us, in his chapter on Burbank's general methods of procedure, that his aim is threefold, namely: "1. The improvement of old varieties of fruits, flowers, grasses, trees, and vegetables.

"2. The merging of wild or degenerate types of plant life with tame or cultivated ones, in order that the union may be of service to both.

"3. The creation of 'absolutely new forms of life, unknown to the world before—the highest act of the plant-breeder."

The general character of Burbank's work includes two main breeding properties and selection. The former is accomplished by cross-fertilization, brought about by sifting the pollen of one plant on the stigma of another. The latter is simply the choosing of the best specimens and the rejection and destruction of the inferior ones. As has been said, Burbank's use of these methods differs from that of his predecessors chiefly in the scale on which he operates. He may use a million plants on acres of ground in a single test, instead of a dozen in a few pots. And he may discard a few of 500,000 before the final result. In the breeding process Mr. Burbank, as he expresses it, "breaks up the life" of the old parent varieties and turns their forces into new channels, making the flower, perhaps, lovelier or larger, fruit sweeter or more numerous. To do this may require ten or even twenty years of work for cross-breeding is a risky process. No one can predict exactly what will result from it; the only thing is to try it in all possible combinations, select the best result, and use it as a parent for the next year. Only the huge scale on which Burbank works enables him to arrive at any results at all within the period of his own life. A few of these results are now familiar to all readers. Mr. Harwood gives us a partial list of some of the most notable ones following:

"The improved thornless and spiculed edible cactus, food for man and beast, to be the reclamation of the deserts of the world; the primrose-berry, a union of the raspberry and blackberry; the first recorded instance of the creation of a new species, together with the phenomenal berry created from the California dewberry and the Cutbush raspberries, and the plumcot, the union of the plum and the apricot, all three the accomplishment of what had been said to be an impossibility; a plum with no pit, one with a flavor of a Bartlett pear, one having a rare fragrance, many plums of great value, rapidly replacing older varieties, a walnut with a shell so thin that the birds visited the branches and destroyed the nuts, necessitating the removal of the process to make the shell of the right thickness, a walnut bread with no tannin in the meat, the coloring matter of the skin which has a disagreeable taste; a tree which grows more rapidly than any other tree ever known in the tropics, a blossom five to seven inches in diameter, made out of a wild field daisy, a Japanese and an English daisy; gladioli of greatly enhanced beauty, taught to bloom around their entire stem like a hyacinth instead of the old way, on one side of a double stem; a tree driven out and in its place the odor of the magnolia blossom; a lily with a fragrance of the Parma violet, and a scentless veronica given the intensified fragrance of the trailing arbutus; a chestnut which bears nuts in eighteen months from time of seed-planting; fruit trees which will withstand freezing in bud and flower; a poppy so increased in size that it measures ten inches across its brilliant bloom; an amaryllis bred up from two or three inches to nearly a foot in diameter; a calla increased in size until it measures ten to twelve inches in breadth, and then, the process being reversed, bred down to less than two inches; the white blackberry, a rare beautiful fruit, and as toothsome as beautiful; thousands of varieties of lilies. He has greatly improved the plums, pears, apples, cherries, grapes, quinces, and peaches by selection and breeding; has developed many varieties of flowers, improving them in color, hardness and yield, and last, but not least, to the productivity and edibility of vegetables. Pie-plant with leaves four feet in diameter, bearing every day in the year; a prune three or four times larger than the ordinary French prune and greatly enriched; the pomato, an improvement on the poisonous potato, producing a rare fruit which grows upon the top of a potato; blackberries without thorns; the improved Australian star flower, one of the everlasting varieties which is to be used for the decoration of ladies' hats; a larkspur greatly enlarged in size and given a delightful odor; many improved varieties of grasses; improved tobacco; these are among the works which have come from his hand; others promising even more important results are now under way.

"The continuance of Mr. Burbank's work under favorable conditions has now been assured by a grant from the Carnegie Institution of $10,000 a year for the next ten years. It is understood, Mr. Harwood tells us, in thus recognizing Burbank's services, the institution takes special cognizance of their practical bearing on human welfare and the impossibility of carrying forward his experiments along many of the most promising lines, without special funds. Mr. Burbank is now at his winter quarters at a house in Lancaster, Mass., where, after working some years in a factory in his own state, went in his twenty-sixth year to California for his health. Here, after doing odd jobs for some time, he secured enough money to establish a small nursery. He then began a series of experiments that has made him famous. Before leaving Massachusetts he had already produced a new variety of potato, and his career is a signal illustration of the following of a decided bent for achievement. Mr. Harwood, who is now at the University of Lehigh, Stanford University, whose words Mr. Harwood gives at the close of his book:

"In his own way, Burbank belongs in the class of Faraday and the long array of self-taught great minds who lived while the universities were spending their strength on fine points of grammar and hazy conceptions of philosophy.

"Scientific men belong to many classes; some observe, some compare, some think, and some carry knowledge into action. There is need for all kinds and a place for each. With a broader opportunity, Burbank could have done a greater variety of things and touched life at more points; but at the same time, he would have lost something of his simple intensity and fine delicacy of observation, which do not always give and which do not much contact with men sometimes takes away.

"Great men are usually men of simple, direct sincerity of character. These marks are found in Burbank. As sweet as a straightforward, and as simple as a child, at the same time, he was a man of nature, and never seeking fame or money or anything else for himself. If his place is outside the temple of science, there are not many of the rest of us who he found fit to enter."

ANECOTES OF IRVING.
On Sir Henry's first visit to San Francisco he fell so much in love with the Bohemian Club that he gave up every other life pass to the Bohemian Club, and when he sold the Lyceum a few years ago he stipulated that the Bohemian Club should be honored as long as the Bohemian Club stood.

During the reception at the Bohemian Club as well as it was novel. He was escorted to the dining-room by a club member, and a stage had been erected. On the stage stood George Browning, the high priest, who conducted Irving through a carefully chosen ritual.

Suddenly, he appeared on the stage, eight of the characters Irving had made famous—Macbeth, Louis XL, Matthias, Cardinal Wolsey, Thomas a Becket, Shylock, and Richard III—all in complete costume.

They marched to the front of the stage and, pointing their fingers at Irving, recited in unison:

"You, who have painted to the modern world."

Then each of them spoke his line. Macbeth said: "My bloodstained soul; Louis XL: "My mean hypocrisy; Shylock: "Following in unison again with one line.

The orchestra meantime had accompanied this scene with music; and, when the play was over, the orchestra broke out into "Tara-ra-boom-de-ay," and Shylock, the cardinals, Macbeth, and the others all took hands and joined in the wild dance.

Edward German, the English composer, was just a beginner, when by a strange piece of good fortune, he obtained the money to write the music for Irving's production of "Henry VIII." It was not until the music was finished that Irving asked him his terms.

Your terms are mine," replied the composer. Whereupon Irving turned to Bram Stoker, who was standing by, and asked:

"How much did you pay Sullivan and Macbeth?"

Both these composers had reached the top of the ladder and were receiving enormous prices for their compositions. When Irving was told the price he said to himself:

"You will receive the same."

It is always said of Irving that he never required more than the members of his company had a right to expect in proportion to the salary paid. He knew better than most actor-managers the market value of talent, and he paid accordingly. The super had one line to say, which was: "The enemy are upon us." The tone of voice this super assumed soon got on Irving's nerves.

"For heaven's sake," he exclaimed, "speak it as if the enemy were in the way. They might be miles away from the way, but I could say it better I should be earning more than 25 shillings a week," he retorted.

"Is that all you get?" asked Sir Henry. "Yes, and I have others besides myself to keep."

"Very well, then, speak it as you like," but before the first line the super was speaking his line as "the governor" wished him to, and the Lyceum exchequer was debited with more than 25 shillings a week in consequence.

It was at the Merivale matinee that an incident occurred to prove how his realism impressed his audience. Among the spectators was a woman, a friend of Irving's, who for the first time saw Irving in that beautiful little play of Doyle's "Waterloo."

When the curtain fell a long shout of applause greeted the great actor, and in the guise of the veteran Brewster he came before the curtain. But the audience was not satisfied; they recalled him again and again.

At last when they continued to cheer him as the curtain fell on the fifth call, the woman in question got up and, carried away by Irving's realistic acting, shouted:

"Stop, clapping! It's too much for the old soldier. It is cruel to make him bow again!"

The Song of the Cradle.
Bye, bye! Good night
There's a sweet little cradle
Hung up in the sky;
A dear little life that is Waiting for you to be born.
Two soft chubby hands
That will pat and caress;
A little head with curls
That will ring down from above;
A darling to care for,
A baby to love.

One of the grandest agencies
which enlighten Science has

of Buffalo, N. Y.

This wonderful "Prescription" imbues
the entire nervous system with natural healthy vitality; gives elastic vigor to the delicate organism specially concerned in motherhood, and makes the coming of baby entirely free from danger and almost free from pain.

It is worth stating that have used Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription with very good results," writes Mrs. Kate M. Annis, of Hudson, New Hampshire. "Had been in poor health for over four years and had been twice in the hospital. My husband brought some of your 'Favorite Prescription,' and it entirely cured me. I am now healthy and two healthy children, and I am sure your medicine has done more good than all the other treatment I have ever received."

BAD HEADACHES
generally arise from bad stomach action. Foul breath, bitter

Pall Mall Gazette.

"Should you wish," wrote the honorary secretaries of Guy's hospital to the Pall Mall Gazette, "to send a representative of yours to hear Prof. Osler's address, we should be very pleased to introduce him to the meeting, and if he would bring his card with him he would be given one of the seats," and so on. Having complied with the hypotheses, conditions and formalities prescribed, we were duly inducted into the sodality of the physical pupils, a society, despite its distinguished existence for 20 years, new to us. To hear Dr. Osler's first lecture in London as a public lecturer, on the subject of Sir Thomas Browne, himself a physician and a man of letters, was a sufficient temptation to face an even more involved ritual. B.C. SALMON IN THE OLD COUNTRY

Victorian Now in London Sends Newspaper Clipping Showing How It Is Favored.

H. E. Levy, of this city, writing from London, where he has been visiting for some months, forwards to The Colonist the following newspaper clipping:

"The disappearance of the salmonidae, salmon, trout, and sea-trout from the list of fishes in season, says the County Gentleman, makes a gap in the bill of fare possible for dining in the winter. Epicures arrange for supplies of char from the Swiss lakes, which are forwarded packed in ice, and are cooked in water and white vinegar. It seems a pity that so far no means of getting salmon in a fresh state from either the Atlantic or Pacific coasts of America is entirely satisfactory in its results. The Canadian fresh salmon (of the east coast) is brought here frozen or chilled, but does not meet with much appreciation, as the fish has often become somewhat rancid. The Pacific salmon we only get in the canned form, and, for some reason or other, there is a prejudice against it among the rich. Smoked salmon from Norway is always very dear. It would seem worth while to try whether smoking the salmon of the Pacific might not be made to pay commercially. Also, it seems very probable that if Canadian salmon sent here fresh in cold chambers were first of all parboiled (partially boiled) the fat in the body would remain firm, and undergo no change while in the refrigerating chamber.

Why there should be a prejudice against the Pacific salmon, simply on the ground that it is packed in tin, is difficult to understand. We have been eating earthenware packed in this by the million every year for half a century, and no one expects to be any the worse. The tinned salmon is one of the main staples of the poorer classes. It has an excellent flavor, and can be "made up" into fish cakes, patties, potted salmon, and curries, besides being excellent when cold, and simply turned out of the tin, for it has been cooked in the process of packing. It is claimed that some of the superior "brands" are a real luxury. When it is remembered how excellent some of the modern cooked and tinned fish are, such as the herrings and tomato now commonly sold, there is every reason to think that the Fraser river salmon might be still better.

FISH COMMISSION AT WESTMINSTER

Matters Affecting Fraser River
Industry Fully Inquired Into.

A New Westminster correspondent writes of the proceedings of Tuesday's session of the fisheries commission at the Royal City as follows:

Besides the commission members, the hall was packed with cannermen, fishermen and those interested in the outcome of the investigation now being carried on. Prior to the opening of the meeting, Prof. Prince, chairman of the commission, and the commissioner of the Dominion, was asked his opinion on international co-operation for the conservancy of the salmon fisheries, to which he replied that the Americans have always been strongly in favor of hatcheries and artificial propagation, and, in fact, based their entire prospects for advancing the industry on this point alone, being exceedingly lax in other conservancy efforts.

"The enforcing of the closed season with a view to preserving the industry is a very weak point on the American side of the line," said the chief commissioner. This is not only noticeable in the Pacific waters, but also on the Great Lakes and Atlantic coast, particularly on the lakes, where they deplete their fisheries to such an extent that they are compelled to come to the Canadian government with a request to be allowed to secure spawn from Canadian streams to supply their hatcheries.

Mayor Keary welcomed the commission on behalf of the city of New Westminster, citing the work laid out for them as one of the most important in the province. At the conclusion of this address the chief commissioner on behalf of the city of New Westminster, citing the work laid out for them as one of the most important in the province.

At the conclusion of this address the chief commissioner called for any information the fishermen might have to lay before them. The secretary of the association stated that the fishermen wanted the cannermen to present their case first, and then the fishermen would put in any objections they had to the plans of the cannermen.

The cannermen sat still, even though the secretary of the cannermen's association was present, and did not attempt to lay a single petition before the commission. A controversy was carried on by the fishermen for over an hour before the commission could get them to come forward with a statement.

Finally a farmer and fisherman stated that the reason was almost in this neighborhood that the fishing above the Westminister bridge was to be shut off. To this he and the 300 or 400 settlers above the bridge, who fish in the summer and clear their farms in the winter, objected strongly, because they have to depend on what they get from the fishing in the summer to put them through the winter while they clear the land.

On being questioned regarding other matters in connection with Fraser river fishing, witness stated that he had fished the Fraser river for sixteen years, first at the month, but after the installation of the Port Roberts traps he had to move up river because the fishing was killed in Canoe pass by the traps. Commissioner Prince asked:

"Before the traps were installed, how did you find fishing at the mouth of the river?"

"Some years," witness said, "the fish did not come up the river more than a few miles; that was about fourteen years ago. They would come in and go out on the tide." Witness further stated that he thought it took the fish about forty-eight hours to come from the mouth of the river to the Mission bridge, and was of the opinion that if the river was divided into two closed seasons, one of thirty-six hours, at the month, and then, after the first twenty-four of that had passed, have a similar season start on the upper reaches of the Fraser, it would be the closed season that would be required, as far as the Canadians are concerned; but let the international commission insist that there be a season of twelve hours preceding the Canadian close in the American waters.

In the matter of depth of net the fishermen appeared in favor of a forty-mesh net instead of the eighty-mesh cork net now in use. This is over the river, and has been in use for some years on the Columbia river, and has proved far more successful than the Canadian cork net of the even greater mesh. The evidence of the fishermen went to show that they could catch far more fish in the river net than in the cork, and that the fish ran below the half-line mark on the cork nets, which rendered the upper forty meshes floating material, for the real catching portion of the meshes.

There was no evidence taken from the board of traps or other bodies except fishermen. The real debate between the fishermen and cannermen is expected tomorrow.

Prof. Prince refused to allow lawyers to cross-examine the fishermen giving evidence, claiming it was not fair to unlearned men.

George E. Turner, of Matsqui, practically charged the commission with sitting on set plans laid by the cannermen. Turner then recalled the remark and asked the commission that instead of cutting off fishing at the Westminister bridge, to extend it to the mouth of the river, eight miles above the present limit at Mission bridge. Several other delegates also sanctioned this request.

The salmon will be the only line of investigation opened by the commission, speaking of the British Columbia fisheries. Prof. Prince remarked that they were capable of far greater development; that the salmon fisheries were by no means the most important in these waters, the halibut being a valuable fish and needing more careful guarding on this coast if it is to be saved from depletion. He said the herring fisheries are also capable of great development, although, partly owing to somewhat different methods of curing the Canadian herring, it has been bringing a low price in the market.

In Victoria the trap question will be taken up, in Nanaimo the herring industry, and in Vancouver the halibut.

VLADIVOSTOK MUTINY.

Large Part of City Destroyed Before Trouble Was Quelled.

St. Petersburg, Nov. 15.—Advices from Vladivostok late this afternoon indicate that the mutiny of the sailors and soldiers has been quelled and is now partially restored, the commandant having agreed to send home the reservists and time expired men detained there.

Both the sailors and fortress artillerymen participated in the outbreak. The situation has quieted in the harbor. The situation got beyond his control and emergency measures were not taken until a large part of the city had been destroyed.

The population is still seeking refuge on the water in the harbor. According to one report from Vladivostok, 300 rioters, mostly sailors and artillerymen, were killed or wounded during the first day of the outbreak.

THE WEATHER.

Meteorological Office,
Victoria, November 15—8 p. m.

The high pressure has at length given way over the North Pacific states, and there is a general decrease from British Columbia southward to Oregon and Washington; light rain has fallen at Barkerville and Port Simpson, and along the Straits of Fuca, and the weather along the coast has been cloudy and threatening, but clear inland. The pressure is low; the weather is moderately warm in the two Western provinces, but colder in Manitoba, where snow has again fallen at Winnipeg.
